Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS.—All I know is what I read in the papers. About ten days ago we had quite a mess of news happening.

But here lately it's pretty well bogged down. When those Frenchmen were flying the Ocean, and Lindy was receiving 'em, you know that must have been quite a novel sight. Think of Lindy meeting somebody instead of being met. But he did a mighty gracious thing, as he always does. When those boys landed he was right there, to give them the glad and of welcome, and it was real too. For he is for anything that is for the good of aviation whether he is the one doing it or not. Yes sir he and Annie was there.

Well those fellows had a right to make that trip. They were real winners in the first place, and they had made every known preparation, and taken every precaution. The trouble with most of the other trials that have failed, they were by practically unknown aviators, and they were just taking a chance, and figuring in many they could make it. You see, when those Germans come mean-dering in here by way of the North Pole and way stations (which by the way was a great trip, why that stirred the French. You let a German do something and even if it's wrong the Frenchmen will want to out do him. Now that they have it done, I look so, have to put up immigration laws against visiting foreign aviators. They will be dropping in here so fast that Grover Whalen will have to be shaking hands with both mits.

Mr. Hearst getting thrown out of France was big news away back in the same days the Frenchmen were landing. He went on over to England and they received him with open arms, and even asked him to write something about them. France got sore at something, he wrote about 'em, and England with their minds on what could be accomplished by publicity, as they had seen it done by America, they said, "Sure W. R. publish any of our old Treaty you want. We will even write you one to publish, go ahead, write what you want and stay as long as you like." Well anyhow they lost a mighty good spender, when they let him go. Outside of Rio de Janeiro he does things in a bigger way than any man I ever knew.

Well let's see what else there is in the prints. I thought we was going to have some Farm Relief to report to you by this Sabbath day. But the computations are just gathering data. They won't take the farmer's word for it, that he is poor. They hire men to find out how poor he is. If they took all this money they spend on finding out how he is, and give it to the farmer he wouldn't need any more relief. But soon as winter comes he will be O. K., soon as snow flies he can kill rabbits, that will be the biggest relief he has had so far.

Well the elections will be breaking out pretty soon, and a flock of Democrats will replace a mess of Republicans in quite a few districts. It won't mean a thing, they will go in like all the rest of 'em, go in on promises and come out on Alabais. If the Farmer could harvest his promises he would be sitting pretty.

When Jimmy Gerard said that fifty-seven men run this country everybody thought it was an ad for Heinz pickles, so he had to add Bishop Cannon and Al Capone.

Poor Jimmy. Everybody jumped on his selections—everybody that wasn't mentioned. The Senate was broken-hearted in fact. The funny part about the whole thing is, the ones they are running it don't want their names mentioned—not this year, anyway. They are liable to sue Gerard for slander.

Just back from a rodeo over at a great little Western town called Winnemucca, Nev. That's a great State. When you feel that the people around you are taking too much care of your private business, why move to Nevada. It's freedom's last stand in America. Yet they don't do one thing that other States don't do.

Only they leave the front door open. You can get a divorce without lying, a drink without whispering and bet on a game of chance without breaking even a promise.

Quit hollering about how poor off we are and look at the real troubles of some of these other birds, down in the Argentine soldiers are guarding their President. Peru just landed theirs on a battleship and advised him to head for Siberia. Brazil is in a huddle, the Labor Government in England are about to join the unemployed, Hearst has joined Germany, and Briane has joined Russia, so it looks like Mexico is about the only one with no trouble at all.

RED ARROW CLUB PLAN IS EXPLAINED

Stickers in the show windows of several local business places announce "this is a Red Arrow place." Many have been enlightened as to the meaning of these mystic signs by the various business men enrolled in the Red Arrow club. Others have read the plan involved in the Red Arrow Game through the advertising columns of the Avalanche.

Briefly, the plan is as follows: The merchants in the Red Arrow Club issue special Red Arrow currency to all purchasers at their various establishments. Also to all persons paying promptly on account. The amount is governed by the extent of the sale. In other words "When you spend a dollar here, you get a Red Arrow dollar back." This currency is accepted in lieu of U. S. currency toward the payment of bids on merchandise which will be sold each month at the Regular Red Arrow Auction, which will be staged at the Rialto Theatre.

The first auction will be held Oct. 17, and the articles to be sold at that time are now on display in the windows of the various members of the Red Arrow Club. The articles are selected from the regular stock of the merchant displaying same.

You may select any article displayed or listed on the Auction List, which you can secure from any Red Arrow Club member or their clerks. Then just before the Auction secure a bid ticket from any member, and fill out on that ticket what you are willing to pay for the article selected. All payments to be made in Red Arrow Money. On the night of the Auction if you are the successful bidder you pay in Red Arrow money and take home a nice prize. In case you are not the high bidder you still have your Red Arrow money left to bid at future Auctions.

Democrats Elect Committee Officers

The County Democratic convention was held Monday night at the McCullough Shoe Shop, when the following officers were elected: Chairman, James McDonnell; secretary, Frank Tetu; treasurer, A. J. Nelson. No delegate was elected to attend the state convention.

Now is the time to order those Christmas greetings. We have a wonderful line as usual to select from. Avalanche.

SCHOOL NOTES

Believe It or Not. It looks as if the Grayling High School students are going to support an orchestra. At the first roll call seventeen students answered, and we still have a few promises from other students. So let's get this talked up, and stand back of it and help support, for a long musical winter.

The Biology class is busy collecting specimens of flowers and insects this week for class study.

The General Science class is studying "The Solar System." They could almost compete with the ancient Greeks and Romans in their ability to see peculiar objects in the heavens. The Seventh and Eighth grade arithmetic classes are using a new textbook, "The Problem and Practice Arithmetic." The text book formerly used was "The Buckingham Osborne Searchlight Arithmetic."

One of the most important character traits is that of promptness. The man or woman who is always late is very rarely a success in life. The farmer who is always late at plowing time, usually has only half a crop; the engineer who is behind schedule is fired; the executive who is habitual behind in his work fails to function. Careful analysis of various occupations will reveal that promptness is an asset in any walk of life. Our children are forming their lifelong habits now. Let us as parents and teachers try to help them form the habit of promptness.

In the second place this promptness of the students and pupils has a vital bearing on their success in life now. One or two tardy ones not only lose part of their own work, but also disturb the entire room. Our conclusion is simple, let's have every boy and every girl on time every day.

The Junior High English classes are studying composition and grammar three days a week and literature two days. Each class is devoting extra time to improve individual grammar. This is being done through story telling, conversation and regular class work. In literature the classes are studying short stories.

The ninth grade has a new revised text-book which is proving to be very interesting and helpful.

Grayling High school students began the year of 1930 and 31 with the hope that it would be a successful year.

The students are again enlisted in the State Debating league, with Miss Jacques as our new instructor.

We hope to make a success of our school band with Mr. Klotz as our director.

The ninth and tenth grade girls are taking gym this year under the supervision of Miss Virginia Jacques. New gym suits are being sent for, for the girls taking part, consisting of middys and trunk.

The School Board has purchased one hundred new lockers for the High School students. The lockers have been placed in the corridor on the second floor. These lockers are opened by combination lock. Two or more students occupy each locker.

Home Economics Department

The Home Economics classes, which include the seventh, eighth, ninth, and tenth grade girls, have organized a Home Economics club. This is the first club of its kind to be organized in the Grayling High school.

RABBIT SEASON OPENS OCT. 15

Open seasons on two species of small game will rapidly follow the opening of the duck hunting season. Cottontail and Snowshoe or Jack rabbits may be killed in the upper peninsula beginning October 1. The lower peninsula rabbit season does not open until October 15.

The open season for Florida Gallinules and rails also opens October 1. No changes have been made this year in the bag limits for rabbits, or for gallinules and rails. The limit on rabbits in the upper peninsula is five in a day, five in possession at one time and fifty in a season. The bag limit for gallinules and rails is 10 (combined) in a day, twenty in possession and fifty in a season. These birds may be hunted from a half hour before sunrise to sunset and the same time table used in duck hunting is applicable.

The Club meeting is to be held every Wednesday at 4 o'clock.

Grayling High Starts Debating

Miss Jacques called out those who were on the team last year, and other volunteers of public speaking ability. A good number turned out Monday afternoon at four o'clock. It was decided after considerable discussion that meetings would be held Monday and Wednesday nights.

A try-out is to be made Wednesday night. Each member is to have prepared and will give a short speech on the question "Resolved: The Chain Stores be Abolished."

The work of the team and the patriotism of the school at large will make a good name for Grayling High.

Fifth Grade

We are starting the year out with an enrollment of fifty in the Fifth Grade.

In honor of the month we are learning the poem "September" by Helen Hunt Jackson.

Our geography class is finding South America a very interesting continent. We have enjoyed our imaginary trips to the coffee and rubber plantations.

Fourth Grade

The Fourth grade children are proud of the fact that they have had a perfect attendance the past three days.

Our motto is "Beat Ourselves." To do that we must get more spelling words right today than we did yesterday. If we keep three health rules, one day, four the next day, and five the third day, we are beating ourselves.

First & Second Grades

The First and Second Grade children of Miss Fyvie's room are studying "Health" this week, and are making vegetable children.

First Grade

The First Grade children are making booklets of "The Family" this week.

Clayton Gorman is back in school again after two weeks absence.

Teachers—Lest You Forget

One swallow may not make a summer, but one big understanding heart will make a teacher a school mother.

Variety is the spice of schoolroom life. The reason people never tire of beautiful sunsets is because no two of them are alike.

You are really a very important person!

You are not only a teacher, you are a nurse, doctor, mother, and housekeeper. On certain days you are a bank clerk and bookkeeper, and every day you are a judge, jury, and prosecuting attorney.

Thus, you need to keep your head up, your heart big, and your smile bright.

—Marta N. Huesing.

WRITES OF TRIP TO ITALY

"Vedi Napoli e poi muori" (See Naples, and then die) is an old saying which the citizens of this city have often quoted—and it comes to mind this morning as I look out over its lofty balconied houses—the bay dotted with fishing craft—the low surrounding hills—old Vesuvius standing guard—a complete picture. It is small wonder that Naples became the favorite residence of the Roman magnates. Virgil completed much of his work here, indeed it became the Mecca for the learned throughout a long period of years—especially under Robert the Wise who invited such men as Giotto and Martini to set up schools of distinction in their field. One could wonder how anyone could desire more of beauty—but of course you recall that the emperors Augustus and Tiberius thought the Isle of Capri out in the bay quite the proper place to live. In fact the latter thought so much of Capri as to build 12 villas out there between 27 A. D. and 31 A. D. when he died. I chose to see what attracted the gentleman so I venture forth to get a steamer ticket for Capri. After about two hours a brief stop is made at Sorrento, another seemingly lovely island—would like to explore it too, but I must put a limit on my inclinations—will see Sorrento next time I'm in Europe.

Again the steamer takes out and again stops at those who wish to see the Blue Grotto may climb into the score or so rowboats and be rowed over to it. Having heard its beauty praised from childhood I buy a ticket and rather eagerly make my way into one of the rocky little rowboats, that I may visit this most famous of the caves in the rocky shore of Capri. Near the shore you are told to sit flat on your back—you do and the boat shoots thru the mouth of the cavern as the tide permits the proper space. Not a drop falls on me but the occupants of some boats were half drowned. The cavern is not beautiful—True, the light from some hidden hole in the wall, does give the water a peculiar milky-blue tint, but the (Continued on last page)

CHALLENGES FARMER TO PLOUGHING CONTEST

In commenting upon the election returns in our last issue we stated that C. J. McNamara who was elected county road commissioner over Harry Souders, was a good business man and a capable executive, and was "county minded."

Mr. McNamara said he appreciated our comments but wished to add that road grading is nothing new for him and that he was the foreman of a railroad grading crew for a couple of years and also had constructed a lot of highway. That was news to us.

Commenting further Mr. McNamara, or rather "Mac" as he prefers to be called, said that he was president at the town hall on election night when Mr. James Williams of South Branch township came in to get the latest on election and heard him say that he was principally interested in seeing Harry Souders nominated and considered him a first class man on a road grader and was anxious that he be elected and he also claimed to know a lot himself about road building, and asked "what does the other fellow know about road building?"

Mr. "Mac" says that just for some good-natured fun that he would like to make a bet with Mr. Williams that he could plough a straighter furrow than he (Mr. Williams) can. He would be glad to stage such a contest right on the Williams farm, use the Williams team and plow, and will be glad to meet him in such a contest at any time he may select.

Gosh! We believe Mac would give Jim a run for his money at that. We know Jim is a good sport and also that Mac will keep his word, so why not pull off such a contest some day next week? Some of you good South Branch farmers, won't you try to get these two "ploughmen" together? It would be a lot of fun and draw a big crowd.

Golf News

In the tournament return game between Grayling and West Branch played on the local course last Sunday, Grayling won with 18½ points to 10 points. Nine foursomes and one twosome took part in the tournament.

The lowest score of the tournament was turned in by Emerson Brown who made both rounds in 40 each.

Twenty West Branch ladies turned out for the tournament to cheer their husbands to victory. Sorry both sides couldn't win.

The work of improving No. 8 faraway is completed and adds materially to the course. Come out and inspect it.

The course is in fine shape since the recent rains.

Mayor Olsen says he is getting to be more like Walter Hagen every day—even leaves his toes behind after hitting the ball.

In the match between Mayor Olsen and T. P. Peterson, the former won by six strokes. Roy Milnes, manager for Mr. Peterson, asks for a return match.

H. G. Jarmin, also a new beginner, cannot understand why he was not invited to play in the Peterson-Olsen match, and does now challenge Mr. Olsen, the winner, to a match.

CARPENTER HAD MAJORITY OVER ALL OPPONENTS

Ben Carpenter proved to be a real vote getter in the primary election for the office of State senator. According to reports he received a majority of the votes cast for that office, with four candidates in the field. In round numbers, according to an official report that came to this office, the vote in the entire district was as follows:

Carpenter	8,000.
Butler	3,000.
Budge	2,500.
Roxburgh	2,000.

The above figures, of course, are not exactly correct but are an approximate estimate that has been received at this office.

ALEX GROESBECK'S demand for a recount of the ballots cast for the candidates for the office of governor smacks very much of an effort to force the issue to a stickier campaign rather than any hopes of winning from the recount. His demand for a recount coming at the very latest hour that the law allows, thus apparently causing all the delay possible, may necessitate the recount to be prolonged beyond the period of time when the Secretary of State must certify to the list of candidates and send them to the county clerks of the state in time for printing.

The law requires that proof copies of the ballot must be filed with the county clerks 15 days prior to the election. That will be October 21st and the printer must have the copy in time to be able to set the form for the ballot before that, which will be at least two days. And it will probably require three days between the time the names are certified and the copy reaches the clerks and the printers, or about October 18th—just one month from today.

And anyone having ever served on an election board as an inspector knows that there are many ballots over which anyone, wishing to cause a delay, might argue for some time. Over 800,000 ballots will have to be counted and a month may easily be consumed in doing the job.

If, when the count is finished and the winner determined and his name does not appear on the ballot as a candidate, we hope the voters will give that candidate an overwhelming victory. If the primary election was carried by Mr. Brucker, he should be given the votes of the Republican voters. If Groesbeck wins, then he should be given the support of his party. As it stands now it looks as if Mr. Groesbeck is taking his defeat hard and is forcing Mr. Brucker into a needless extra campaign.

Of course a stickier campaign would hearten the Democrats who would see a possible opportunity of a divided Republican party, and who knows but that there may be a Democratic governor in Michigan next year. While, with the large Republican majority in the state it hardly seems probable that such a thing could happen, still it could be possible.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM TAYLOR HELD SATURDAY

Funeral services for William H. Taylor, who passed away Tuesday, Sept. 9th, at Gaylord hospital were held Saturday afternoon from the home of the deceased's brother, Floyd Taylor. The Masonic fraternity conducted the services, members of the lodge, most of whom were also ex-service men acting as pallbearers. Rev. J. W. Greenwood of Michigan Memorial church delivered the funeral sermon and Mrs. Herbert Gofko, accompanied by Miss McAllister rendered a couple of hymns very nicely. Interment was in Elmwood cemetery.

William Taylor was born in West Monroe, Oswego county, New York, Sept. 14, 1877, and the following year came to Grayling with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Taylor. He graduated from Grayling High school and shortly after when the Spanish-American war broke out enlisted in the 35th Michigan Infantry. Following the close of the war he re-enlisted in the regular U. S. Army and served for some time after which he returned to Lansing where he remained until 1913 when he re-enlisted in the U. S. Regulars, serving until 1915. Two years later when the U. S. entered the war he enlisted in the 117th Engineers, 42nd Division and served as top sergeant until the close of the World War, when he was honorably discharged from service. He saw action on the Champagne-Marne, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne fronts during his time of service. Practically Mr. Taylor's whole life after leaving school was spent in the service of his country, and his discharge papers show that he made an excellent record as a soldier. He had been ailing more or less since the last war and his illness without a doubt was caused from its effects.

Since spring of this year he had been making his home with his brother and sister, Miss Florence, at the family home here. They together with a sister, Mrs. George Darling, survive the deceased.

Those from out of town in attendance at the funeral were Miss Ethel Taylor, Big Rapids; William Butler Sr., Miss Florence Butler, and Mr. and Mrs. William Butler Jr., of Detroit. The surviving members of the family have the sympathy of many old friends in their sorrow.

ONE BUTTON FOR TWO FISHERMEN

A boat, two men, two fishing poles, one pair of oars and one license "button." That is what Conservation Officer Rex Joslin of Benzie County saw far out on Crystal Lake through a pair of field glasses. Joslin was interested in the license button. One would pin the button to his shirt and fish while the other reared or rowed the boat. Then, turning, the button would be exchanged while the other rowed. The fishermen were Clifford Flora and Richard Beadleston of Chicago. Their neglect to get two licenses cost them $18.50 each in court and their joint "button" was confiscated.

DUCK HUNTERS' PARADISE

Hadn't gone out after ducks for years, but crawled out of the hay when the "Big Ben" went off about 4:30 a. m. Tuesday, swallowed a cup of hot Java and donned my hunting togs. Had cleaned and oiled the "Big Bertha" a day or two previous so was all set when friend drove up with his "Lizzie," and after loading up with an ample supply of ammunition, away we went to the rendezvous—several miles from the village. No, I'll not say just where 'cause it's a place just known to friend and me—and perhaps one or two others—but say you can see more ducks there than any other place in four counties. Some folks said there were ducks on the river back of the roundhouse, but that would be too much like shooting neighbor's chickens in your own back yard for me, and I'm "Tom Sawyer" enough to want to do things "regular," so we went out to the wilds.

And wild ducks wasn't all we saw—for right within easy gunshot were three nice fat ducks. How we did wish the month was November instead of September. Was tempted to try a shot anyhow, but was afraid couldn't persuade "Rube" that a saddle of venison in any way resembled a wild duck.

It was a cool frosty morning and not yet light when we started but we wanted to be at the appointed place when the birds sat down to their breakfast of wild rice. Parked the car not far from the river, pulled the skiff out of her hiding place and clambered in. Then with silent paddle and guns in readiness we pushed off from shore and placed our decoys at a strategic place near the bend of the river. As the rays of the rising sun began to flicker through the bushes and play upon the driftwood and rippling water I gave a few calls with the decoy whistle and soon the vicinity was alive with birds—big ducks and little ducks, slow-flying mallards and fast-flying whistlers, and mudhens or coots diving into the stream for their breakfast. A great hubbub of quacking was heard and oddly enough, mingled with it, occasionally was heard the cawing of a crow. This we discovered later came from a pioneer duck-call—the notes of which were now and then drawn out too long by the lips of another hunter who had also secreted his skiff at this duck-hunters' paradise.

After the first shot or two the birds rose from the water and circled overhead, coming back a second and third time to give us another try at them—the mallards flying so low and slow that the novice might easily take a pot shot at them, while the "whistlers" sailed so fast that you had to fire several yards in advance of the leader to get the tail feathers of the last laggard in the line. Believe it or not, I had fifteen good shots and soon the sky began to rain ducks, and then just as I was trying to stuff a nice fat mallard that would weigh about two pounds dressed, into my gamebag—the barber removed the hot towel from my face and I realized I had been "romancing" while in a daze after hearing the stories of several village nimrods and listening to duck-calls on a local tenorsial parlor.

HE TOOK NO CHANCES

He brushed his teeth twice a day with a nationally advertised tooth paste, reports Louis L. Morris, editor of the Hartwell, Ga., Sun. "The doctor examined him twice a year. He wore his rubbers when it rained. He slept with the windows open. He stuck to a diet with plenty of fresh vegetables. He relinquished his tonics and traded in several women's gauds. He golfed—but never more than 18 holes at a time. He got at least eight hours sleep every night. He never smoked, drank or lost his temper. He did his daily dozen daily. He was all set to live to be a hundred.

The funeral will be held next Wednesday. He is survived by 18 specialists, 4 health institutes, 6 gymnasiums and numerous manufacturers of health foods and antiseptics.

He had forgotten about trains at grade crossings.

FLOATING DUCK BLINDS PERMITTED

Floating anchored blinds will be permitted this year on six Michigan waters, under authority given the State Conservation Commission by the 1929 session of the Legislature.

These waters are Manistique, Houghton, Muskegon, Lakes and Round Lake (Antrim and Kalkaska County) and on all of Saginaw Bay and on Lake St. Clair.

Little trouble was experienced by the Department of Conservation last year in enforcing the new duck blind law and it is believed that all duck hunters this year are well familiar with the regulations.

Blinds must be located within 100 feet of the shore or not more than 100 feet outside of natural growth which rises above the surface of the water thick enough and high enough to make a more or less natural hiding place. The idea is that blinds shall not be built out in open water.

Blinds built on piles and located far out from shore and far from any above-water vegetation are unlawful under the 1929 law.

HERMIT ENDS LIFE IN LONELY CABIN

25-Day Hunger Strike Is Balked; He Uses Gun.

Danville, Va.—Frank W. Davis, recluse, whose twenty-eight day hunger strike failed as a means of suicide, won his fight for death with a gun in his lonely shack near Mountain hill. He was buried on a neighbor's farm.

His body was found by neighbors, and the gun, with a cord attached to the trigger, lay nearby. He had shot himself in the chest.

Asserting he had outlived those he loved, that he had no friends, that he was too old to be useful, the farmer started his hunger strike May 2, determined to end his life by starvation.

Twenty-eight days later, authorities took him to a hospital and threatened to commit him to an insane asylum.

Davis abandoned his starvation attempt, said he had a "new outlook on things" and was permitted to return home. He had been heard to say he believed shooting himself would be morally wrong and "messy," and the gun never had been taken from the house.

He bequeathed his ten-acre tobacco farm and his funds to Hazel Seay, young granddaughter of Mrs. Josephine Miller, on whose farm he was buried.

Demoted Copper Solves

Theft, Shows Up Force

Kansas City, Mo.—Often cited as one of the best men in the detective division, Bert Haycock disagreed with a new chief on a matter of assignment, and for an outburst verging on insubordination was demoted to the rank of a patrolman and assigned to an outlying precinct station.

There he sought lost children, investigated suspicious persons seen loitering by nervous housewives. One night safe crackers broke open a drug store safe, stole 112 pints of whiskey and some narcotics. Detectives from headquarters made a routine examination. More thorough was Bert Haycock, patrolman.

On a greasy newspaper, which might have been used to wrap burglar tools, Haycock found an unfamiliar name written in familiar handwriting. He recalled the habit of one Eddie Ingram, ex-convict, of making designs, names and sentences on any available paper.

Going to Ingram's home, he found Ingram with a bottle of whiskey of the same brand stolen from the drug store. He placed Ingram, Glen McAdams, whose name was on the newspaper, and Howard Lansdon under arrest. In the cuff of Ingram's trousers, he found a tablespoonful of cement similar to a bit dug from the drug store.

Patrolman Haycock, former detective, having shown up headquarters sleuths, returned to the "kitchen" continued to investigate missing children and suspicious persons seen loitering by nervous housewives.

Half Annual Salaries

Go to Glorify Woman

New York.—Of 102 occupations listed by the American Research foundation as engaging women workers in the United States, 52 contribute directly or indirectly to making women beautiful. Twenty-five years ago, only 10 fell in this category.

"Half the salaries paid in this country, annually, are for glorifying womanhood, in one way or another," said Ruth D. Maurer, beauty authority of national reputation, addressing a meeting of cosmeticians here. She quoted the survey just completed by the research foundation.

Workers in only ten of the 52 occupations contributing to making women beautiful are directly concerned with pulchritude. They are the dressmakers, beauty operators, physicians, dentists, chemists, artists, designers, hairdressers, and jewelers.

Sewing Machines Given

to Unemployed Women

Mexico City.—A group of women, unable to find employment, took their troubles to Gen. Manuel Peres Trevino, Mexican secretary of agriculture. He knew of no suitable jobs to offer them, but gave them ten sewing machines and advised them to start a co-operative sewing society.

The women thus equipped will apply to clothing manufacturers for piece work which they may do at their homes.

Rooster Hatches Guinea Eggs

Kinston, N. C.—Edgar Trotman's barred Plymouth Rock rooster, that hatched two broods of chickens last summer now is the proud parent of a half-dozen young guineas. The rooster failed to take as a joke Trotman's act of placing the guinea eggs under him. The rooster, although a hard-boiled bird, has motherly inclinations.

Black Bear Scares

Negro Farm Hands

Wynne, Ark.—Negro hoe hands do their chopping with anxious glances to all directions these days.

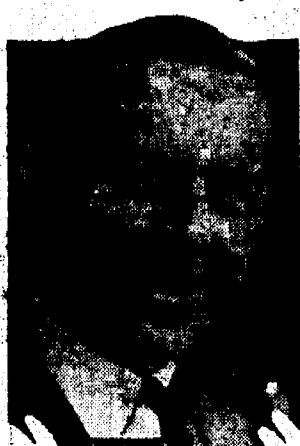

The workers were thrown into a turmoil when a black bear was seen swimming the river in their direction.

Where Men Excel

While woman is superior to man in the matter of endurance of pain, she is inferior in the senses of taste and smell. In an experiment made with 25 women, young and healthy, and the same number of men it was found that no woman could detect essence of lemon further than in a solution of one in one hundred thousand, but several men recognized it down to one in two hundred and fifty thousand.

PICTURE TO SHOW AMERICAN LEGION'S SMALL WARDS

"Out of the Maelstrom," a two-reel motion picture depicting the lives of the American Legion's small wards at the Otter Lake Children's Billet, is ready for general circulation. It was announced today by Charles H. Schutz, department commander.

Directed by Herbert B. McKinney, Detroit, "Out of the Maelstrom" is a graphic picture of life at the Children's Billet, with liberal sprinklings of pathos, humor, tragedy and drama. From a photographic standpoint, few motion pictures of the same type have put in an appearance within the past few years. The titles are well done, and the Legion has in "Out of the Maelstrom" one of its best arguments for existence and wholehearted support by former servicemen.

Harold Heffernan, motion picture critic of The Detroit News in a recent review of "Out of the Maelstrom," terms the picture "well done," while Jack Canna, editor of The Legion News, says: "The picture takes approximately 25 minutes to run. It shows the geographical characteristics of the Billet, from reveille in the morning until tuck-in time at night, their playtime and work-time activities, school and church, and the many other sides of an active juvenile existence." McKinney has produced a great picture.

"Out of the Maelstrom" is to be shown throughout Michigan. Application blanks for use of the film were being mailed today by Commander Schutz to Legion post and unit commanders. It is also to be shown at the Legion National Convention, meeting next month at Boston.

Taking its title from a brief synopsis at the commencement of the film, "Out of the Maelstrom" tells a vivid story of child rehabilitation.

In carrying on this work, the Legion considers itself as performing a duty to the former service-man, bringing health and happiness out of the maelstrom of war to those who never knew the war, but who know its price.

LIFE-SAVING AWARD

The Navy Department has forwarded to Owen Freeman, photographer U. S. Army, attached to the U.S.S. Camden, a gold life-saving medal awarded by the Secretary of the Treasury for his rescue of Lieutenant D. D. Guiley, U. S. Navy, according to the Navy Recruiting Station, Detroit. While making a flight for the purpose of taking photographs the plane in which Freeman was working, with Lt. Guiley as pilot, crashed into the Honolulu harbor. The pilot was carried under water by the plane. Freeman, although suffering from a fractured leg, freed Lt. Guiley from the wreckage, and held his head above water until assistance arrived from a rescue plane.

Hormones and Youth
More Argentine Trouble
How Heavy Is the Earth?
Peggy Duncan's Feet

Scientists gathered in Cincinnati are told that new methods of rejuvenation, better than the Voronoff "gland grafting," have been discovered. Compounds made of mysterious "hormones" will do the work, some "hormones" being taken from glands that could never be transplanted. The old may be made to live a little longer, but science will never discover anything better than friendly death, which removes men worn out, and makes room for new energy.

The learned Voronoff, who, by the use of monkey glands, extends the lives of old men, says: "All Americans are dead at fifty." He does not mean that they actually die, but that they are worn out at fifty, and might as well be dead.

There is no doubt that men in America wear out early. Their eyes grow dim, hair white, step slow and knees stiff, too early.

But they get things done, which is more important than remaining young.

In the Argentine, few killed, many wounded and new fighting threatened. Airplanes guard important points, and Irigoyen, late President, is locked up. Inaccessible. The cable is censored, lack of employment puts many in the streets that would otherwise be at work. A serious situation may develop.

Irigoyen, who used to denounce the Monroe Doctrine, may be changing his mind.

If there were no Monroe Doctrine this would be an excellent time for some European or Asiatic power to arrive, saying: "With your kind permission, we shall take charge."

That won't be done with Uncle Sam's Monroe warning posted up.

Doctor Heyl, deep and genuine scientist of the bureau of standards, is constructing a device to "make the fourth dimension visible to the eye of the average man." He will not succeed, because he himself cannot imagine the fourth dimension except as a mathematical theory. His contrivance thus far looks "like a ball of popcorn."

The fourth, fifth, sixth and other dimensions that are suggested seem to the ordinary man more like a ball of "poppy-cock."

Doctor Heyl has done something more interesting than making men try to imagine what they cannot imagine. He has actually weighed the earth on which we stand.

If you want to know how heavy it is, write down the figures 6,582, followed by eighteen zeros.

The earth is about as heavy as though made of solid steel, and it is interesting to reflect that that appalling weight, on which we live, floats always in time around the sun, through the ether, if the ether really exists, which is an unsettled question.

Peggy Duncan, a powerful nineteen-year-old girl from South Africa, has conquered the English channel, making the swim in sixteen hours fifteen minutes, but failing to beat Gertrude Ederle's record.

Miss Ederle can tell the young girl from South Africa that swimming the channel does not pay. You lose your hearing in the cold water, and the world soon loses its recollection of you.

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange, says the country is getting back on a firm business basis, and that the stock exchange was in no way responsible for the slump, unemployment, etc.

The latter statement is sound, the stock exchange and the ticker reflect, but do not create, conditions. The wave of stock gambling, wasting the time of able men and scattering the money of fools, caused trouble, but that is not the fault of the exchange.

Marconi believes that radio waves will travel off millions of miles through space.

If the sun can send rays of light through 83,000,000 miles of space, there is no reason why radio waves shouldn't go as far in the other direction.

This ought to mean that we shall talk to the other planets soon, if they have any inhabitants able to talk.

In welcoming the French flyers enthusiastically President Hoover mentioned "Byrd, Rickenbacker and the rest."

It is refreshing to hear Rickenbacker mentioned, proving that men who flew in the war are not entirely forgotten.

Their flying was unlike modern peace flying, as different as the performance of a hawk from that of a carrier pigeon.

When Rickenbacker went up, his plane or another had to crash. Time after time he went up, and time after time he brought down the other planes. This he did more often than any other American flyer.

He has remained in the background amid all the praise of peace flying. The public should not let him stay there.

Flour Classifications
Patent flours are classed on long patents or short patents, depending on what proportion they represent of the total flour milled from the grain. A short patent may contain less than 50 per cent of all the flour milled from the grain, and is seldom made except for commercial bakers, who want a flour of maximum bread-making power. A longer patent, which contains perhaps 60 or 65 per cent of the total flour, is more common.

Inside Information

Paint and varnish spatters on glass may be dissolved with turpentine or alcohol, or rubbed off with a dull knife.

Chocolate that appears white on the outside has been kept in an overwarm place, so that some of the fat has melted and come to the surface. This does not injure it for use.

An imperfect seal, or lack of sterilization will cause catsup to spoil. Bottles should be sterilized, and filled while they are boiling hot, with boiling catsup, and then processed in the water-bath canner for 30 minutes.

Many vegetable combinations are good when you do not have enough of any one vegetable to go around. Carrots and peas in equal quantities; string beans and carrots; celery and turnips; rutabaga and potato; tomato and onion; or tomato and okra; corn, string beans, onions; beets and peas; blends of different greens.

When making jelly it is not necessary to heat the sugar before adding it to the fruit juice. The only reason for heating it is to shorten the time of boiling the jelly. If the juice is boiling hot when the sugar is put in, the boiling process will only be checked for a minute or two by the addition of the cold sugar. It is then boiled rapidly until the jelly state is reached, which should be in from 5 to 10 minutes or even less.

Outing flannel makes a good drip bag for fruit juice when making jelly. It is preferred by some people to cheesecloth.

Neglecting to boil the glasses may in some cases cause fermentation of the jelly after a few weeks. Scalding the glasses with hot water is not so good a precaution against this as desirable result as boiling them.

Use cheerful, fresh looking curtains in a small breakfast room or alcove. Dotted, checked, or striped gingham is good, or English prints, or cretonne, or muslin banded in color. If the breakfast room is sunny, select colors and fabrics which will not fade or be affected by the strong light.

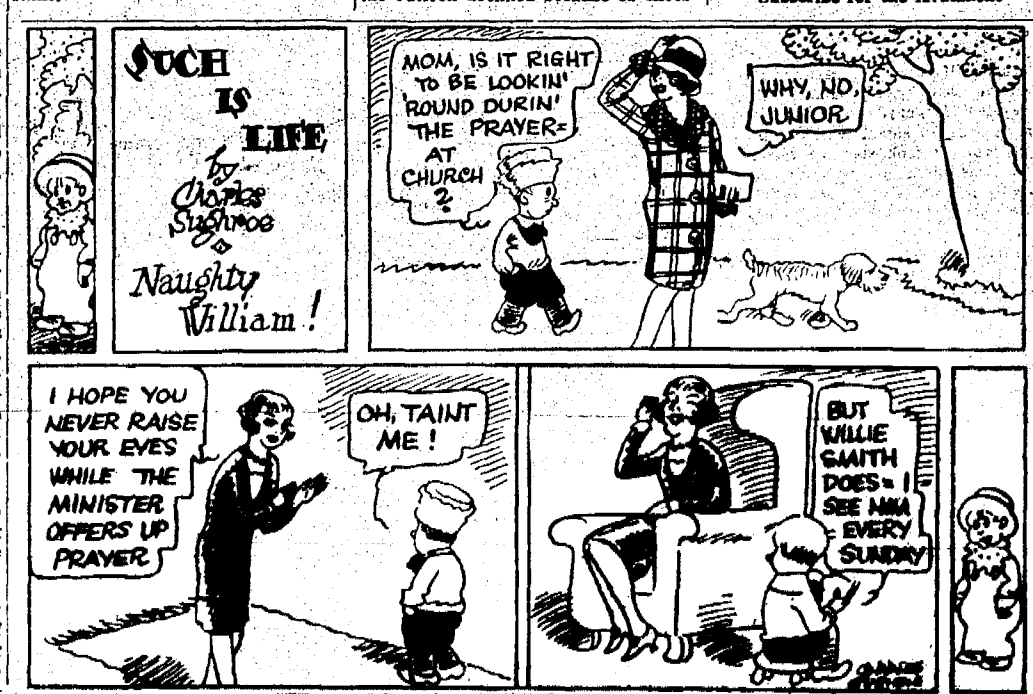

Moldy bread may result from wrapping the bread up before it is thoroughly cool, or from lack of care of the bread box. In addition to airing the bread box frequently, sometimes seal it out thoroughly, and dry it in a warm oven or on the back of the stove, or directly in the sun. Molds do not like dry hot air or sunshine.

THE SEPTEMBER POTATO OUTLOOK

The United States potato crop is now estimated at 339,278,000 bushels or nearly six per cent less than the light crop of last year and fourteen per cent below the average five-year crop. The spread of the drought into the more northerly states coupled with the heat wave during July and August was responsible for most of the decline in condition since August 1. Reduction in prospects was particularly severe in the more important late shipping states of the eastern section, particularly Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. In Maine, on the other hand, the outlook declined because of excessive rains, resulting in extensive blight and rot damage. Late reports from this state anticipate further losses. Prospects continue good in New Jersey and in most of the important western shipping states, particularly Idaho and Colorado.

The prospective 1930 crop represents the lowest per capita supply on record—2.75 bushels. Last year's per capita production amounted to about 2.91; in 1928 it was 3.80 bushels. While adequate rains and late frosts might cause material improvements in the drought-stricken states, the present outlook is for prices well above the average of recent years.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Results of Maine Election and the Primaries in Other States.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ONE state election and a bunch of primaries served to keep up the interest in politics. From the varied results the advocates of repeal or modification of prohibition derived considerable comfort, believing that the big dry majority in congress will be somewhat reduced by November elections.

In the Maine election the Republicans were victorious, putting their candidate in every major office. Gov. William Tudor Gardner was re-elected, defeating Edward C. Moran, Jr., congressman Wallace H. White, Jr. of Lewiston was chosen to succeed Senator Arthur P. Gould by a large majority, and all four seats in the lower house were won by Republicans. The Hoover administration was the main issue, and though the Republicans won, their majorities were much cut down as compared with those of two years ago.

Of the primaries, those of the Republicans in Michigan were the most interesting. Senator James Couzens, who is a moderate wet, won re-election over Chase S. Osborn, dry. Representative Louis C. Crampton, a dry leader in the house and recognized as the spokesman of the Anti-Saloon league, was defeated by Jesse P. Wolcott, an avowed wet, and three other wet candidates for the house won nominations, at least one of them beating a dry. Wilbur M. Brucker, attorney general, defeated former Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck for the gubernatorial nomination. In Detroit on the same day Frank Murphy was elected mayor to succeed Charles Bowles who was recalled in July.

Briefly, here are results in other primaries:

South Carolina—Democrats nominated James Byrnes, a dry, for the senate, defeating Senator Cole Blease, a wet.

Colorado—Republicans chose George H. Shaw, opposed by the Anti-Saloon league, for the Phipps seat in the senate, turning down W. V. Hodges, endorsed by the dry organization. Edward P. Costigan was nominated by the Democrats.

Louisiana—Gov. Huey Long defeated Senator Ransdell for the Democratic senatorial nomination after a sensational campaign.

New Hampshire—Republicans nominated John G. Winant for governor. Democrats named Albert W. Noone, eighty-four years old and a wet, for both governor and senator.

Delaware—Republicans renominated Senator Hastings and Congressman R. G. Houston, both dry; Irene DuPont, Republican leader, announced he would support former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, wet, whom the Democrats nominated for the senate.

Washington—John P. Miller, veteran dry congressman from Seattle, defeated for re-nomination by Republican Ralph A. Horr, an active wet.

Georgia—Democrats renominated Senator W. J. Harris and chose G. H. Carswell for governor.

Arizona—George W. P. Hunt won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination for the eighth time.

ENTRY of another woman candidate has made the senatorial campaign in Illinois a three-cornered affair, with small minorities in the shape of several minor aspirants who have no chance of election. James Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic nominee, continues his serene way as a wringing wet. Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, regular Republican nominee, found it necessary or advisable to modify her dry stand to the extent of promising to abide by the result of the referendum on prohibition. Thereupon Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill entered the race by petition as an unqualified dry. She received the endorsement of the state Anti-Saloon league, but the W. C. T. U. declined to pledge her its support, concentrating instead on the referendum. Colonel Lewis said he feared the battle between the two women would work to his disadvantage, but his apprehension—if any—was not shared by his supporters. The activities of Senator New's campaign find probing committee. It was thought by many, would help rather than harm Mrs. McCormick's chances.

FURTHER support for the anti-prohibitionists was provided by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, who after a lapse of two years came out with a statement that he favored repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, which he says, has fostered excessive drinking, led to corruption and hypocrisy, brought about disregard for law and flooded the country with untaxed and illicit liquor. The governor strongly declared his opposition to the return of the saloon, but urged a new constitutional provision that would return to the states exclusive control over the sale of intoxicants.

SOUTH AMERICA revolutions sometimes are swift in action. The one in Argentina is a case in point. Within a few days the military junta headed by Gen. Jose Uriburu gained complete control of the country and President Yrigoyen, sick and abandoned by his cabinet, was forced to resign. After he was placed aboard the cruiser "Buenos Aires" and permitted to leave the country, presumably for Montevideo, Uruguay.

Provisional President Uriburu and his government look steps to restore normal conditions and thereby suppress all disorders, establishing martial law throughout the country. The populace was ordered to stay in all arms in place, of some punishment. Uriburu showed himself especially anxious to obtain the recognition of the United States, declaring he would do all in his power to co-operate fully with this country and planning to send a good man to fill the ambassadorship in Washington which has long been vacant. It was understood that Dr. Manuel F. Malbrán, former ambassador to both the United States and Chile, probably would be appointed.

AMERICANS held for trial in Peru by the Peruvian government have been released from custody. Lieut. Gen. Harold H. Grow, who is accused of planning to bomb the city of Arequipa, denies this flatly but says he prefers to have Peru decide his fate without any foreign pressure.

Bolivia is in something of a ferment, martial law having been declared in La Paz, the capital. In Panama President Arosemena appointed an entire new cabinet, which is considered a big victory for Rodolfo Chirri, leader of the National Liberal party. Chirri now is the virtual dictator, controlling the president, legislature and cabinet.

BRIAND's plan for a federation of European states was presented to the eleventh annual session of the League of Nations assembly at Geneva by its proponent, the French foreign minister. He had previously set it before the League's council, which contented itself with patting him on the back and passing the scheme along. M. Briand's speech was much the same as he delivered a year ago when first proposing the federation and he did not attempt to alter details. He said the response of Europe was "in adherence to the principles of European collaboration," and declared the proposed union must necessarily work in close co-operation with the League of Nations. He denied again that the union would run counter to or be in any way inimical to the United States. Statesmen had told him, on the other hand, he declared, that relations between Europe and America could more easily be strengthened by existence of a European organization.

"Twenty-seven nations have studied this question," he concluded. "Twenty-seven nations have said 'yes it can be done.' There it is before you. Go. March on. Accomplish peace!"

Arthur Henderson, replying for Great Britain, caustically demanded that the continental nations disarm or quit talking peace.

Though the assembly had on its agenda such subjects as removal of tariff barriers, the world economic crisis and the opium question, its chief concern was with war and peace. It had been hoped that the disputes between France and Italy could be settled in conferences between Briand and Dino Grandi, the Italian foreign minister, but the latter departed hurriedly for Rome without explanation. Conversations on the naval question, however, were held by experts of the two countries. Nicholas Titulesco, former Rumanian minister to Great Britain, was elected president of the assembly.

MARSHAL PILSUDSKI, now premier, war minister and general boss of Poland, opened his fight with the chamber of deputies in characteristic fashion. He caused the incarceration of former Premier Witos and seventeen former members of parliament who are opposing him, thus greatly cramping the campaign of his foes in the campaign for the elections on November 18. The opposition, appealed in vain to the minister of justice and then started riots in the streets of Warsaw, which resulted only in more arrests.

MAHATMA GANDHI will not attend a round table conference on India to be held in London, having been omitted from the list of those invited. However, the delegates at the big meeting will include a large number of the most brilliant men of India, and enough of them are ardent nationalists to make it certain that their country's desire for at least independence will be ably presented. More than half of the delegates listed have publicly advocated dominion status for India.

PHYSICIANS, nurses, relief workers and vast quantities of food, clothing and medicines, from the United States, Cuba, Haiti and Porto Rico, reached Santo Domingo, and an army of men was put to work cleaning up the storm-stricken capital of the Dominican republic. The danger of pestilence was lessened when a supply of water was obtained and the streets were cleared of bodies and debris.

RELIEF for the unemployment situation through restriction of immigration has been undertaken by President Hoover. He announced that the State department, through its consular agents abroad, would refuse visas to alien laborers seeking work in this country. The action is taken under the authority of a section of the law which permits exclusion of immigrants who are liable to become a public charge.

FLYING back from Texas, Coste and Bellone, the French transatlantic aviators, reached Washington and there received the official tribute of the nation for their great feat. President Hoover received them in the rose garden of the White House, told them their flight had brought new glory to the whole human race, and entertained them at luncheon. Then at a big civic banquet Vice President Curtis and other prominent men praised them as "daring ambassadors of the air" whose achievement rivaled that of Charles A. Lindbergh. There was also a reception at the French embassy and a trip to Arlington National cemetery where the aviators laid a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

John O. Donaldson, one of America's best known pilots, was killed when his plane crashed at the Philadelphia municipal airport. Donaldson served with the United States air force in the World War. He attained the rank of captain and officially was credited with eight victories over German planes. He received the Distinguished Service cross and the prince of Wales personally decorated him with the British Distinguished Flying cross. Four other decorations for valor attested his bravery.

DEATH came last week to Simon W. Stages of New York and Chicago, an outstanding American financier who, through real estate bond issues, financed the construction of many of the most famous buildings in the country. Others who passed were Leonard Rooby, head of the Chicago surface lines; Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, daughter-in-law of President Grant; Rear Admiral Stimpson, U. S. A. retired; and Arthur T. Vance, veteran editor of the Pictorial Review.

Roger Bacon First to Use "Magnifying Glass"

"Spectacles" is the name given to lenses of any required form which are supported in front of the eyes to assist vision. In the early days when it was not easy to obtain glass of good quality, they were also made of quartz or rock crystal, and it was called. Some years ago quartz lenses were revived by opticians and sold at fancy prices on the erroneous plea that they were cooler to the eyes.

Prof. M. von Rhoh says that Roger Bacon explained how to magnify writing by placing a segment of a sphere of glass on the book with its plane side down. Demand for spectacles increased during the sixteenth century with the advent of the printed book, especially in North Italy and South Germany, where there were glass workers. The early mounts were of horn and leather, and about this time metal began to be used.—Kansas City Star.

How He Benefited

Binkers looked at his doctor. "Yes, doctor," he said, "the strain of life to one in my business is very great." He paused, then: "But I have a great remedy, you know, and that is cycling."

"Ah, I can quite believe you," said his doctor. "First-rate exercise, cycling. Takes you out of yourself. Fills your lungs with fresh air; brushes away the cobwebs of care, eh?"

"Well, no, it's not that."

"No?"

"The fact is, when I go out I'm so thankful to get home alive that I feel in high spirits the rest of the day."—St. John Telegraph-Journal.

Somewhat Out of Place

The place was crowded. It wasn't exactly a fashionable wedding, but there was no gaining the interest it caused, because both bride and bridegroom had been much in the public eye, she as an actress, he as a conjurer.

Everything went well until they reached the critical stage of the proceedings, and the clergyman asked for the ring.

The bridegroom plunged his hand into his pocket and brought out a rabbit. Then the horrified look in the clergyman's eyes and a startled exclamation from the bride made him realize that something was wrong. He looked down and saw the rabbit.

These Happy Victorians

One entry in the diary of Mary Gladstone (afterward Mrs. Drew), daughter of W. E. Gladstone, "Grand Old Man" of Victorian politics, reads: "Quiet evening at home. I was in my room at 9:30 and heard him and mamma coming up the stairs singing. A ragamuffin husband and a ranti-polling wife at the top of their voices."

"Him" was her father, the prime minister of England, then seventy-four years of age. "Home" was No. 10 Downing street, official residence of the P. M.—Kansas City Star.

"In the Doldrums"

To say, "I am in the doldrums" signifies that one is "in the dumps" or he depressed. It was originally a term of the sea. The word, "doldrums," refers to the shifting zone of equatorial calms of variable area between the trade winds. The weather is hot, moist, and extremely dispiriting with heavy and frequent rainfall usually accompanied by thunderstorms. In the old days, sailing vessels sometimes lay by helplessly becalmed for weeks with the crews, "in the doldrums."—Kansas City Times.

Commercial.

It's funny what a difference just a comma will make. The following shows that:

"After washing, golf hose, babies, sweaters, and stockings, place them on wooden frames bought especially for this purpose. The articles will dry evenly without shrinking and will not require pressing."

How Old Are You?

When Will You Be 42?

Today You Say—And That Is That—But Tell Me Are You Very Fat?

Well, if you are—it's probably your own fault—You don't know how to eat right and that's one reason.

If you would like to learn how to lose the fat you hate—and no one else likes—do as I did—Take this 89 day test—

Cut out candy, cakes, pies and ice cream—cut down potatoes, rice, butter—cheese, cream and sugar—

High Watermark

Sutherland is in New Zealand is the highest waterfall in the world, tumbling 817 feet—1,904 feet. The second highest waterfall is in Rhineland, falling in Yonckstein National park; its height 825 1/2 feet.

Farm Notes

Concentrated buttermilk is an excellent poultry feed. This product is usually marketed in barrels or kegs. It may be fed either diluted in 6 or 7 parts of water as a drink, or in concentrated form in troughs. If fed in troughs, allow 8 pounds to 100 laying hens.

The first few weeks in the feed lot is a critical time for feeder steers. Start with limited quantities of concentrated feeds and increase them very gradually during the first 30 days. Roughages of good quality may be fed in any quantity without harm. However, they add bulk to the ration and the more roughage the steers eat the smaller will be the daily gains and the longer the fattening period.

Few flowers yield so lavish a return for a small effort as garden irises. One essential in iris culture is that other plants surrounding them do not grow over them after their flowering season. Shade over iris rhizomes prevents proper growth and curtails bloom for the next year. Flower buds for next season are formed in late summer or early fall, so it is better to transplant irises either before or after this time.

Most asparagus growers cut the dead tops of the plants in the fall and burn them to destroy any disease germs or insects that may be present, but it is doubtful if this practice is advisable in the regions where severe frozes occur. The old tops hold the snow and prevent deep freezing and blowing of the soil. Some growers harrow the bed or throw slight ridges over the rows, in the fall, but where land is inclined to wash, cultivating and ridging are objectionable.

A common mistake in figuring the quantities of materials needed for a given volume of concrete is to assume that the volume of concrete equals the quantity of sand plus the quantity of gravel in the mix. For example, a 1:2:4 mixture will not produce 6 cubic yards of concrete, if 2 yards of sand and 4 yards of gravel are used, because the sand will lodge in the spaces between the pebbles. If you want 6 cubic yards of concrete, use 2.7 cubic yards of sand and 5.34 cubic yards of gravel.

The chances of raising a pig in the fall are less than in the spring, and fall-farrowed pigs need special attention, particularly in the North. Records compiled by the U. S. Department of Agriculture show that losses of pigs on pasture are considerably greater in the fall, principally on account of hog cholera, which is more prevalent in late fall than at any other season. Pigs should have comfortable, dry, well-bedded quarters in the fall and winter. Where snows occur and the pigs carry considerable moisture into their quarters, the bedding should be changed frequently. Plans should be made in the South for supplying winter pasture. Though the open-trough plan of watering is all right in the Southern States, an automatic, heated waterer should be provided in the northern sections.

Changing to Winter Rations

When changing the dairy cows from summer to winter feed, plan it so that the change will affect her digestion.

Feed system as little as possible. Supplement the pasture by roughage, and as the pasture gets shorter, gradually increase the roughage. For the grain ration, use farm-grown grains mixed with high protein concentrates in such proportions as to balance the roughage. Well-sorted legume hays are good for fall and winter, and silage and stored root crops are especially valuable in supplying succulence and stimulating the milk flow.

Hogs and Soybeans

Feed soybeans wisely to fattening hogs, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Twenty-five per cent or more of soybeans fed with corn to fattening hogs will produce soft pork, and even considerably smaller proportions may cause lack of firmness. Recent tests by the Department of Agriculture and cooperating State experiment stations showed that 1 part of soybeans fed with as much as 12 parts of corn (or 7.7 per cent of soybeans in a corn-soybean ration) supplemented by minerals fed to fattening hogs tended to produce soft carcasses. This was when the initial weights of the pigs were 100 pounds or less and the daily gain did not exceed 1 pound. Initial weight and rate of gain, as well as feed, influence the softness of the pork. When the pigs weighed more than 100 pounds at the beginning and gained 1.3 pounds or more a day on this ration, most of the carcasses were firm. This suggests the use of the heavier and more thrifty pigs when this ration is to be fed on the farm.

NAVY RECONDITIONING OLD SUBMARINE TENDER

The Fulton, which is being reconditioned as a gunboat for service with the special service squadron, will be towed from the navy yard, Philadelphia, to the New York Navy Yard for the installation of her main engines, according to the Navy Reconditioning Station, Detroit. The Fulton, built in 1914 as a submarine tender, will replace the light cruiser, Galveston and Denver in Central American waters. The Fulton was assigned to the navy yard, Philadelphia, in 1924, and was originally named the "Niagara" and during the World War was a tender for submarines.

KONJOLA ENDS STOMACH TROUBLE OF 15 YEARS

New Medicine Only Treatment To Give Relief—Detroit Man Benefitted

MR. JOE JOHNSON

"Four bottles of 'Konjola' ended stomach trouble from which I have suffered for fifteen years," said Mr. Joe Johnson, 110 Cortland street, Detroit. "After meals I was bothered with gas, bloating, and severe pains in the stomach region. No matter what I ate, the food never seemed to agree with me and I was always worried about my diet. During these years I was never able to put on weight and was in a badly run-down condition."

"Last fall a friend induced me to try Konjola. At the end of the second bottle, I could feel a splendid improvement. I continued with the medicine until I had taken four bottles. I can truthfully say that I feel much better generally. I have gained considerable weight and can now thoroughly enjoy my meals. I have told many friends of the benefits I have received and I shall always be a 'booster' for Konjola."

"Taken regularly over a six to eight week period, Konjola has made a remarkable record in the relief of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness."

Konjola is sold in Grayling, Michigan at the Mac & Gidley drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Mrs. Emma C. Baumgras, wife of Henry P. Baumgras of Lansing, superintendent of the grounds during the summer activities at the Hanson State Military reservation at Lake Margrethe, passed away at Mercy Hospital Sunday morning, following an operation of a serious nature, performed on Tuesday. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Baumgras were deeply grieved on learning of that lady's untimely demise.

The remains were taken to Lansing Sunday, where on Tuesday afternoon, funeral services were held from the Jarvis-Eates funeral home.
Interment was in Mt. Hope cemetery.
Emma C. Schaible was born in Owosso, July 30, 1883. Their home was in Lansing, but they had been coming to Grayling since about the year 1915, Mr. Baumgras being superintendent of the Michigan National Guard camp ground during the summer. They made many warm friendships and their coming each year was looked forward to by many of our townspeople and long ago they had begun to grow like regular residents.
Mr. Baumgras has the sympathy of hosts of friends in the loss of his estimable wife and companion.

Surviving the deceased besides her husband are four sisters and four brothers—Mrs. Gay Stanton, Owosso;
Mrs. Lawrence Meyer, Chicago; Mrs.
Ruth Collins, Flint; Mrs. Claude

his approval. It is estimated that the bill authorizes the expenditure of more completed will cost in excess of $300-000,000. Actual expenditures must be made from the lump-sum annual appropriation of $55,000,000 at the disposal of the army engineers.
